Privacy document: development placeholder (NOT LEGAL TEXT)

> Development only. Nobody real has agreed to this. He Is Real Today's development site (dummy data only) needs a published privacy document so its consent forms and the consent ledger can be tested for real (D75). This is that stand-in. The database refuses it, and the forms that link to it, anywhere but development, and stops counting them if the development switch is turned off. The lawyer-checked version 1 (v1.md) is a gate before the Real stories phase.

What the real document will cover:

- what data we keep and why;
- which companies help process it: Clerk (sign-in), Bunny (video and images), Google Cloud (hosting and the database), Resend (email);
- how long we keep it;
- your rights, and how to use them.

The site is for adults: you must be 18 or over to sign up or share a story.
